FOREWORD

We feel that all Throop families in the United States and in Canada are related to each other and are all descended from the original William Throope and Mary Chapman. William Throope was the name taken by Adrian Scroope after he arrived in America from England (by way of Holland). Adrian Scroope fled to America after his father, Col. Adrian Scroope, was executed at Charing Cross in October of 1660 for his part as one of the commissioners of the High Court of Justice who tried and sentenced King Charles I of England.

On page 681 of this volume we have included a section for as yet unplaced Throops. We feel they are a part of our family and that the facts of just how they are connected to the main Throop tree trunk are buried somewhere in history just waiting for someone to find them. After this volume is published we will be continuing our research trying to place these families. A revised edition of this book will then be published in about 10 years. Therefore, if in your research you find information that will help us place these families or add others please get in touch with us. Our address is 11708 Hollyview Drive in La Mirada, California 90638. My father is Fay Throop, Box 595, Project City, California 96079.

THE SCROPES

There are bits of information that might lead one to believe there were Scropes in England before the time of Edward the Confessor, who reigned from 1042 to 1066. Some authorities have studied various names and place names and found some interesting clues. Some of the findings include "Scroo, Scroop, Scrop, Scru," as well as "Scroop's abode, Scropton, Scruton, Scroop's town." Flavell Edmunds is one of a number of authorities on the origin of surnames who thinks that the town of Scrooby derived its name from a man named Scrope, or some variation of that name. If this is so, there must have been Scropes in England long before the time of Edward the Confessor, because an old Nottinghamshire Charter of the year 958 names "Skroppenhorp". The name of this town finally became "Scrooby". This is especially interesting to those of the family who are Mayflower descendants, because the little Scrooby congregation was the nucleus of the Pilgrim band.

Other authorities, such as Sir N. Harris Nicolas, seem to feel that "the little evidence which is extant on the subject justifies the opinion that the first person who is recorded to have borne the name of Scrope, was a native of Normandy". There was an influx of Normans at the time of Edward the Confessor and Edward the Confessor did spend a good part of his life in exile in Normandy. When Edward came back to England after the death of Hardicanute, to take his place on the English throne in 1042, many of his Norman friends came with him. Edward the Confessor had a foreign favorite named "Richard Scrupe" who held various manors in England.

Richard, son of Scrob (Scrope) received grants of land in Herefordshire and built a castle there. The castle has vanished, but the parish in which it stood is still known as "Richard's Castle." The Normans, and their habit of building castles, were very unpopular with the Saxons, and when Earl Godwin became strong enough to demand his rights, one of the conditions he imposed was that the Normans be banished. For some reason, Richard, son of Scrob, was allowed to remain. His son, Osborn, however, together with other Norman exiles fled to Scotland and were favorably received by Macbeth. He was later allowed to return and held land and offices in Herefordshire.

These early Scropes carried a badge showing a ducal coronet out of the middle of which rose the two large, uplifted pincer claws of a crab. There is a picture of this badge in the second volume of Sir N. Harris Nicolas' work on the Scrope-Grosvenor trial. Some say that the name originally meant "Crab".

The branch of the Scrope family from which Adrian Scrope is descended was settled in Yorkshire, England, at least as early as 1198, as one Robert Le Scrope held a knight's fee in Yorkshire at that time. They lived in the valley of the Ure River, called Wensleydale, and their burial place was St. Agatha's Abbey.

The known direct ancestry of Adrian Scroope is as follows:

1. Henry le Scrope
2. William le Scrope
3. Sir William le Scrope married Constance Gillo
4. Sir Henry le Scrope married Margaret Roos
5. Sir Richard le Scrope married Blanche De Lo Pole
6. Sir Roger le Scrope married Margaret Tiptoft
7. Sir Richard le Scrope married Margaret De Nevill
8. Sir Henry le Scrope married Elizabeth Scrope
9. Sir John le Scrope married Joane FitzHugh, Elizabeth St. John, and Anna Harding
10. Sir Henry le Scrope married Elizabeth Percy
11. Sir John Scroope married Phillis Rokeby
12. Sir Adrian Scroope married Ursula Clifton

13.Sir Robert Scroope married Margaret Cornwall
14.Col. Adrian Scroope married Mary Waller
15.Adrian Scroop=William Throope

In the year 1286, the Manor of West Bolton was held by Sir William le Scrope, Knight. He married Constance, daughter and heir of Thomas, son of Gillo, of Neusam Upon Tees. His father was William le Scrope and his grandfather was Henry le Scrope. Both father and grandfather are buried at St. Agatha's Abbey in Wensleydale, Yorkshire. In 1294, Sir William le Scrope was Bailiff of Richmond. He was reputed to have been the best knight in the county at jousts and tournaments. He was living in 1303, but dates of birth and death are not known. He had two sons who at various times held the position of Chief Justice of the King's Bench. One of them was Sir Henry le Scrope, father of the first Baron of Bolton; and the other was Sir Geoffrey le Scrope, father of the first Baron of Masham.

Sir Henry le Scrope was Knight-Barrenet. Between the years 1308 and 1333, he served as Judge and Chief Justice of Common Pleas, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, and Chief Baron of the Exchequer. He married Margaret, daughter of Lord Roos of Kendal. He died about 1336 and is buried at St. Agatha's Abbey.

Sir Richard le Scrope, who became the First Baron of Bolton was born about 1328. He learned knighthood as a boy and "attached" himself to John of Gaunt and served him loyally for many years. He married Blanche, daughter of William and Margaret (de Norwich) De Lo Pole.

In 1359-60, King Edward III, his four sons and the English army invaded France. Sir Richard le Scrope was a member of this expedition, as was also the poet Chaucer, who at that time was just a soldier. In a foray against the town of Rethel, near Rheims, Chaucer was taken prisoner but later was ransomed. The king contributed about $2,400 toward his ransom.

When Richard II became king in 1377, Sir Richard le Scrope was appointed Steward of the Household and in 1378, he became Chancellor and Keeper of the Great Seal.

In 1377, Sir Richard le Scrope lodged a complaint against Sir William de Bowes and others, saying that they had broken into his Yorkshire parks and had hunted there without his permission. They carried away his game and assaulted and imprisoned his servants. Sir Richard requested permission to fortify his manor house at Bolton. The Royal license was granted on July 4,1879. When he had finished, his manor had become transformed into a fortress known as Bolton Castle that is still standing on the hillside of the Ure Valley.

Bolton Castle was eighteen years in the building and cost a great sum of money. It was completed in 1399, some four years before Sir Richard's death in May of 1403. The specifications and quantities for the building of Bolton Castle are still extant in an agreement with John Lewyn, the builder. These are preserved at Bolton Hall, Yorkshire. Most books on Yorkshire contain a description of Bolton Castle and many show pictures of it. One of its claims to distinction is that it was one of the prisons of Mary, Queen of Scots.

While unable to assert the response, there are some present day addresses which might be of interest: Peacock and Calvert, Bolton Castle, Leyburn, Yorkshire, England; Lord Bolton, Estate Office, Wensley, Leyburn, Yorks.,England; Lord Richard Scroope, Danby House, Middleham, Leyburn,Yorkshire,England.

In 1385, Sir Richard le Scrope challenged the right of Sir Robert Grosvenor to bear the shield that the Scropes claimed as exclusively their own. It was a shield with a field of Azure (blue) and a gold band running diagonally across it. Many famous personages of that time testified at the trial, among them Chaucer and John of Gaunt. Chaucer testified that he had seen Sir Richard and Sir Henry Scrope bearing these arms at the battle of Rethel, where he himself was captured.

This famous law suit, in which most of the distinguished men of the day were called to testify, lasted almost five years and was decided in Sir Richard le Scrope's favor. The preponderance of evidence showed that his ancestors had borne this shield continually since the Conquest.

The oldest son of Sir Richard was William, and he would have become the Second Baron of Bolton. However, he was offered a fatter and juicier plum--the earldom of Wiltshire, which carried with it the right to wear a kingly crown in the Isle of Man.

The second son of Sir Richard le Scrope was Roger, and it was to him that Sir Richard left his titles and estates. However, Sir Roger, Second Baron of Bolton, died just six months after his father died in May, 1403.

The third son of Sir Richard, First Baron, was Stephen, who went to Ireland as a Deputy Lieutenant, where he fell a victim to the pestilence that was ravaging Ireland at that time, and died in 1408.

The son and heir of Sir Roger, Second Baron of Bolton, was Sir Richard le Scrope, born May 31, 1393. He married Margaret, daughter of Ralph De Nevill, First Earl of Westmoreland. The wives of the Bolton Barons were all from powerful influential families who figured prominently in the affairs and politics of their day. Sir Richard died in 1420.

Sir Henry le Scrope, Fourth Baron of Bolton was born June 4, 1418, and married Elizabeth, daughter of John le Scrope, Fourth Baron of Masham and Upsal. He was in the Council of Henry VI and in parliament. He died in 1459.

Sir John le Scrope, Fifth Baron of Bolton, was born July 22,1435,and was a member of the King's Council under Richard III. He married (1) Joane, daughter of William, Baron FitzHugh, (2) Elizabeth, daughter of Oliver St. John and (3) Anna, daughter of Sir Robert Harding. He died August 17, 1498.

Sir Henry le Scrope, Sixth Baron of Bolton was born about 1468. He married into the powerful Percy family, his wife being Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Percy, Third Earl of Northumberland. He died in 1506.

Sir John Scroope was the second son of Sir Henry. He was born about 1498 and married Phillis, daughter of Ralph Rokeby of Mortham. Sir John Scroope died between 1544 and 1547. One of his younger sons was named Adrian and Sir John is always referred to as the "ancestor of Scroope of Wormsley."

Sir Adrian Scroope married Ursula, daughter of Sir John Clifton and had a son named Robert.

Sir Robert Scroope, Esq., of Wormsley, Oxon, was baptized in 1569. He was a Justice of the Peace. He married Margaret, daughter of Richard Cornwall of London. His son was Col. Adrian Scroope and his grandson was Adrian Scroop-William Throope.

Before considering Col. Adrian Scroope, let's continue down the Barons of Bolton. The Eighth Baron of Bolton was Sir John le Scrope who died in 1549.

Sir Henry Scrope, Ninth Baron of Bolton, was born in 1534. He was one of Queen Elizabeth's chief advisers. He was Warden of the West Marches and Governor of Carlisle. He was the Lord Scrope who had custody of Mary, Queen of Scots. He died in 1591.

Sir Thomas Scrope, Tenth Baron of Bolton was Warden of the West Marches. He is the "Keen Lord Scrope" in Sir Walter Scott's old ballad about Kinmont Willie. He died in 1609.

Sir Emanuel Scrope, Eleventh Baron of Bolton was also Earl of Sunderland. He left no sons to inherit the title, so the Baroncy became extinct at his death.(He had a son named John Scrope who defended the Castle in a siege which lasted for more than a year before ending on Nov. 4, 1645. John Scrope died in London at the early age of 20 and therefore never inherited the Baroncy.)

Col. Adrian Scroope, son of Sir Robert, was born in 1600-1. He grew to manhood during the reign of the first of the Stuart kings, James I whom Charles Dickens calls "His Sowship". James I seemed to feel that the king had a right to make and unmake what laws he pleased, and ought to be accountable to nobody on earth. The reign of James I was a disgrace. The influence was passed on and Charles I also felt that he could rule, with or without a parliament as he saw fit, and promises were to be easily made and as easily broken.

Young Adrian Scroope matriculated at Hart Hall, Oxford, on Nov. 7, 1617, and was a student of the Middle Temple in 1619. In November of 1624,he married Mary,daughter of Robert Waller of Beaconsfield,and sister of Edmund Waller,the poet.

Mary Waller Scroope was descended from the Hampden family. Her grandfather was Griffith Hampden, a brother of the William Hampden who married Elizabeth Cromwell, the aunt of Oliver Cromwell and also aunt of General Whalley, one of the regicides who escaped to America. William Hampden and Elizabeth Cromwell Hampden were parents of John Hampden, spoken of as "the patriot". The Hampdens were an old, wealthy and prominent family. Queen Elizabeth was entertained at Great Hampden by Griffith Hampden during one of her journeys. In order to afford her Majesty more commodious access to the house, Griffith Hampden had an avenue cut through his wood still called the "Queen's Gap".

Adrian Scroope entered into the Parliament Army and raised a troop of horse. He appeared at the head of this troop at the battle of Edgehill. From the rank of Major he soon attained that of Colonel of Horse.

He was sent to suppress a revolt in Dorsetshire. He was sent against the Duke of Hamilton and afterward with eight troops of horse and dragoons to Yarmouth, which was attacked by the Prince (afterward Charles II) and the Duke of York.

His sentiments were so well known with respect to a Republican Government and the dislike he had to the person of his Majesty that he was appointed one of the Commissioners of the "High Court of Justice." He was present every day in the "Painted Chamber" and in Westminster Hall and signed and sealed the warrant for Charles I's execution.

Col. Adrian Scroope was Governor of Bristol Castle in October of 1649 where he remained for some time. He was appointed in 1657 as one of the Commissioners to Scotland in conjunction with General Monk, Lord Broghil and others. Later he was appointed Sheriff of Lithgow and Sterling until the Restoration.

In the spring of 1660, England again became a monarchy, and on May 1st, letters were read in the two houses of Parliament from Charles II, containing the famous "Declaration of Breda". It was dated April 4th, and promised pardon to all save "only such persons as shall hereafter be excepted by Parliament." On May 18th, the House of Lords ordered the seizure of the members of the court which had condemned Charles I. Just a week later the King landed at Dover and on June 6th, issued his proclamation which summoned a long list of persons to appear within a fortnight or forfeit pardon.

Col. Adrian Scroope surrendered himself within the time limit specified by the proclamation, but nineteen of those summoned fled the country. Two of these, Whalley and Goffe, trusting the word of no Stuart, had left England on May 4, 1660. They went under assumed names of Edward Richardson and William Stephenson and had taken passage for America at Gravesend on the "Prudent Mary". There are many interesting stories told about Whalley and Goffe and their adventures in America in and about the region where Adrian-William Throope settled.

Parliament, after much debating on what punishment should be given to the regicides, excepted forty-nine men out of the act of indemnity as being unfit for pardon. All of these were found guilty and were sentenced to death.

On October 14, 1660, Daniel Axtel, John Carew, Gregory Clement, Francis Hacker, Thomas Harrison and Hugh Peters were executed. Three days later Thomas Scott, Adrian Scroope, John Cook and John Jones were executed. These ten men said they looked on the death of the king as a solemn act of national justice, and that they had proceeded under the sanction of that authority which then exercised the supreme power in the nation. When they were asked to repent, they replied that of their sins they had repented and of forgiveness they were assured. But they dared not repent of their share in the death of the late king, "for to repent of a good deed was to offend God and they were proud to suffer for such a cause." They all went to their death with the courage of martyrs. The remains of Col. Adrian Scroope were not treated with the same indignity as were those of the others, but were given to his family for burial.

The Rev. Mark Noble, an English clergyman, wrote a work that is called The Lives of the English Regicides and Other Commissioners of the Pretended High Court of Justice Appointed to Sit in Judgment Upon Their Sovereign, King Charles the First. This work is commonly called "Noble's Lives of the Regicides" and was printed for John Stockdale, Piccadilly, in 1798. The following material is taken from this book and contains the record of the trial of Col. Adrian Scroope.

Col. Adrian Scroope was tried at Sessions House, in the Old Bailey, on Oct. 12, 1660, and pleaded "Not Guilty". The Solicitor General opened the case thus:

"May it please you Lordships, and you, Gentlemen of the Jury, the prisoner at the bar, stands indicted for compassing and imagining the death of the late King of blessed memory.

The indictment sets out, that to that end and purpose the prisoner at the bar, did with others, assemble and sit together in Westminster Hall, consulting upon him, and usurped an authority to proceed against the life of our said late sovereign, and in pursuance to that, our late sovereign was brought to his death.

These things are alleged in the indictment as several overt acts to show the treason of his heart which was the compassing and imagining the death of the king: "compassing and imagining" are the words of the statute, the rest of the indictment is but as so many overt acts, evidence and manifestation of that corrupt and wicked heart of his, by which he first thought such a thought against his sovereign.

The manner of our evidence shall be this: Before they could come to accomplish this damnable design, it was necessary to meet in a traitorous assembly which they called "The High Court of Justice," that under the pageantry and mockery of that, they might pretend to murder him by a sentence; and before that assembly could come to sit, there was a precept set forth, very formally, to summon them to sit.

This prisoner at the bar is one of those persons who under his hand and seal did summon that court to sit upon the life of our late sovereign.

When the court, in obedience to that summons (as they called it) did meet, they sat several times, and he, among them, they did proceed with a wonderful impudence as they had begun, to pronounce sentence of death upon our late sovereign.

My Lords, this prisoner at the bar was amongst them, and was at that court, and gave the sentence.

When they had done, that they might complete their villainy, they made a bloody warrant for severing the head of his late Majesty from his body,and the hand of the prisoner is to that warrant also. This is the scope of our indictment."

Prisoner: My Lords, may I have liberty to speak?

Court: If you do confess that which is opened in evidence against you, we shall not need examine any witnesses.

Prisoner: Examine what you think fit. If I understand that worthy gentleman, that spake last, he said my hand was to that warrant for execution. My Lord, If I can see my hand I can tell; I will not deny my hand.

Court: Show it to him. (Which was done accordingly.)

Prisoner: My Lord, I will not deny but that it is my hand, but it is not my seal.

Council: Crier, call Mr. Masterson, Mr. Kirke, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Carr (who were all sworn). Mr. Masterson, pray tell my Lords and the Jury whether you did see the prisoner at the bar in that which they did call the "High Court of Justice" sitting as a Judge upon the late King.

Mr. Masterson: My Lords and Gentlemen of the Jury, I saw, on the 22nd and 23rd of January, 1648, the prisoner at the bar, sitting upon the bench, as one of the Judges in that which they called the "High Court of Justice," the King standing as a prisoner at the bar. I say either the 22nd or 23rd, but I say particularly on the 27th of January, 1648, the day in which the sentence was passed on the late King, I saw the prisoner at the bar sitting upon the bench in that which they called the "High Court of Justice."

Counsel: How did he demean himself when the sentence was read?

Mr. Masterson: When the sentence was read it was by the President as he was called, said to be the sentence and judgment of the whole Court, upon which the prisoner at the bar rose up, as to my apprehension, testifying his assent. All their assents were taken so, and no otherwise to us that were spectators.

Prisoner: I beseech your Lordships that I may speak without offense and answer this.

Court: Mr. Scrope, you may if you please have paper and ink to take notes, or to ask any question.

Prisoner: My Lords, give me leave to ask him this question, whereabouts did he see me sit in the court?

Court: Mr. Masterson, you hear the question, pray answer it.

Mr. Masterson: My Lords, I can not say particularly where he sat; but I saw him in the Court and to the best of my remembrance it was on the second seat on the left hand of Bradshaw.

Prisoner: I would not give offense to the Court in any kind, I am now pleading for my life. I desire to take a little liberty to ask this gentleman if ever he and I were in company together that he knows me so well?

Mr. Masterson: For my part, I do not remember that I saw his face before the sitting of that Court. If this gentleman ask me if I were ever in his company, I know not how I may construe the word "company," but I am sure I never ate or drank with him. I have seen him very many times at committees, more than twenty times since that business.

Mr. Clarke is called.

Counsel: Mr. Clarke, you have heard the question: Did you ever see the prisoner at the bar in that which they called "The High Court of Justice?"

Mr. Clarke: I do remember in the year 1648, I saw the prisoner sitting in that which they called the "High Court of Justice" upon the trial of the King.

Prisoner: My Lords, you may desist from examining witnesses, touching my sitting on that Court.

Court: Do you acknowledge you did sit in that which they called the "High Court of Justice?"

Prisoner: Yes. I see it proved, and I see a gentleman here in my eyes that I know very well. I will not deny it.

Court: Did you sit on the sentence day, that is the evidence, which was the 27th day of January? You are not bound to answer me, but if you will not, we must prove it. Do you confess that?

Prisoner: I do not confess that I stood up as assenting to the sentence.

Mr. Clarke is called.

Counsel: Mr. Clarke, what do you say to that?

Mr. Clarke: I did not take particular notice of him that day that he stood up, but the whole Court stood up, to my apprehension; but I took notice he was there then present.

Counsel: Mr. Clarke, do you remember that you saw any of them sit?

Mr. Clarke: I did not take notice of any that sat then, but all stood up, to my thought.

Mr. Carr is called.

Counsel: Mr. Carr, tell my Lords and the Jury whether you did see the prisoner at the bar sitting in that which they called the "High Court of Justice?"

Mr. Carr: My Lords and Gentlemen of the Jury, the 22nd and 27th of January,1648 I was present when the names of that they called the "High Court of Justice" were called, and amongst others that were Judges of that Court, as was printed in a paper which I then had in my hand, I found the name of Mr. A. Scrope, who I saw did then sit and appear.

Prisoner: I hope you will not take any evidence from a printed list.

Counsel: The manner of his evidence is: He saith this, that he had a printed paper in his hand, when the names of that Court were called, and marking the persons in that paper who were present and that you were one of them that did appear.

Prisoner: My Lord, I shall not dispute in regard to my want of skill in the law, the lawfulness of bringing in any paper in evidence into the Court. I shall not dispute against your Lordships, but by your favor, I do suppose there is no witness ought to use any paper, or look upon any paper, when he gives his evidence; but I shall submit it to your Lordships.

Mr. Solicitor General: We do not need his paper, in this case. He will tell it without a paper. Mr. Carr, speak without a paper.

Mr. Carr: My Lords, upon the calling of those that were Judges in that Court, which they called the "High Court of Justice" then sitting, this gentleman, the prisoner at the bar, did answer to his name then called.

Prisoner: Did you see me?

Mr. Carr: I heard you answer and saw you.

Prisoner: I pray he may be asked whereabout I sat in that Court.

Counsel: Mr. Carr, you hear the question, answer to it.

Carr: I am not able particularly to tell now, it being many years since.

Scrope: My Lord, observe of what value this evidence is. I am sure I never was in his company. I do not know that ever he saw me in his life. I beseech you to give me leave to plead for myself in all humbleness and modesty, my Lord.

Lord Chief Baron: Notice is taken of it, Mr. Scrope. God forbid you should be debarred of it.

Scroop: I say he comes with evidence of a paper, he heard my name called, and marked it. It is strange that a gentleman whom I never saw, I know not his name, nor I do not think he knew my name, if he had met me.

Lord Chief Baron: I told you that was laid aside, and you heard him speak viva voce without a paper.

Mr. Kirke is called.

Counsel: Mr. Kirke, did you see the prisoner at the bar in that Court which they called the "High Court of Justice" for trial of the late King?

Kirke: My Lords and Gentlemen of the Jury, I did see the prisoner there and I did wonder to see him there, which was the reason I took more special notice of his being there.

Scroop: Pray my Lords, let me entreat one thing before he speaks, that your Lordships will be pleased to speak to him to give his evidence without any speech.

Counsel: How can that be? Can he give evidence without speaking?

Scroop: I beseech you my Lords, give me leave to say this, let him give in his evidence in plain words, without any speech.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scrope, he must be excused. There are circumstances inducing, which are as much as the principal. This that he hath said is very material. Saith he: "I did see the prisoner at the bar there; I did not expect, and wondered at it, and therefore took the more notice." Let him go on. Ask him what questions you will.

Scroop: My Lord, I submit.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Kirke, you must speak the truth and the whole truth. Go on.

Mr. Kirke: I say as I said before, I saw this gentleman, sitting in that which they called "High Court of Justice," and I did therefore wonder at it, because I did not expect him there. I came to know him formerly as he was called Captain Scroop.

Counsel: Go on.

Kirke: And, as I said before, I saw this person, this prisoner at the bar, sit amongst the rest of these persons, Judges, as they called themselves, of the "High Court of Justice" for the trial of the King. I did more particularly take notice of this person because I did not expect him there. I knew him formerly, upon this report, being an eminent man, by the name of Captain Scroop, and at that time was an associate of one Captain Vivers and Captain Wingham. I had not seen him some years before this business and seeing him there, I did the more particularly notice him.

Scroop: Have you done, sir? I beseech your Lordship to ask him what employment in that business himself, how unfit a witness he is against me.

Court: Much fitter.

Scroop: If it be so, I have done.

Kirke: My Lord, I was there only as a spectator. I went only there to see and hear what was there to be seen and heard. I stood there and took notes in characters of the proceedings and several others with myself did the like, and we compared them together. That was all my business at that time, and I saw him sit there on the 27th day of January, 1648, which was the day of sentence against the King.

Scroop: Whereabouts did you see me sit there?

Kirke: It is not, I think, imaginable that any person should be able, after so many years, possibly to say where any person sat, but to the best of my remembrance, you sat upon the second bench next to the President, but I dare not be positive in that. I dare not justify it upon my oath. It is but my remembrance.

Here Mr. Scroop talked to one that stood near him.

Lord Chief Justice: We must desire that of you, Mr. Scroop, that you will not speak to any here, but what the court may hear.

Prisoner: I shall observe your commands.

Mr. Coytmore is sworn.

Counsel: Did you see the prisoner at the bar sitting in that which they called the "High Court of Justice" as a Judge upon the King?

Coytmore: I did see him.

Counsel: When? What day?

Coytmore: I cannot name the day; I was there three times of their sitting, there I saw him once or twice; once, I am sure.

Prisoner: What day?

Coytmore: I cannot remember.

Counsel: Did he sit there as a judge upon the King?

Coytmore: He sat among the rest as a judge upon the King.

Scroop: Give me leave to ask him whereabouts he saw me sit?

Counsel: Where did you see him sit?

Coytmore: I cannot remember the place. He was among them. I saw him either one or two days. There was a great company of them together.

Mr. Nutly is sworn.

Counsel: Mr. Nutly, did you see the prisoner at the bar, sitting in what they called the "High Court of Justice?"

Nutley: If it please your Lordships, I was there in the Court those four days that they sat in judgment. I heard the prisoner at the bar called by his name. I did take notice he was there, truly, I think he was twice or thrice, to my remembrance.

Counsel: Can you tell what day? Whether the 27th of January, 1648?

Nutly: I cannot positively, but to the best of my remembrance he was there, that was the last day, when judgment was given.

Mr. Baker is sworn.

Counsel: Mr. Baker, what say you? Did you see the prisoner at the bar sitting in what they called the "High Court of Justice?"

Baker: Yes, I did see Colonel Scroop on Tuesday, the 23rd day of January, 1648, very particularly stand up and answer to his name.

Mr. Coytmore is recalled.

Counsel: Mr. Coytmore, are you acquainted with Colonel Scroop's hand?

Coytmore: I have had several letters from him.

Counsel: Mr. Scroop, have you a mind to see the warrant for summoning the Court?

Scroop: I desire to see it. I do not remember I set my hand to it.

Court: Show it to him. (It being shown.)

Scroop: I cannot say it is my hand.

Court: It is too true. We will prove it to you.

Court: Show it to Mr. Coytmore.

Mr. Scroop: Be pleased to let me see it once more (which was again shown him). Truly, my Lord, I will save him the labor.

Counsel: You do acknowledge it was your hand?

Scroop: I'll save him the labor, for I confess I do not love men should be put to their oaths, more than needs.

Here likewise the warrant for execution was read.

Counsel: We shall conclude our evidence with Major General Brown, the Lord Mayor Elect.

The Lord Mayor Elect is sworn.

Counsel: My Lord, be pleased to tell my Lords what discourse has lately passed between the prisoner at the bar and you concerning the death of the King.

Lord Mayor Elect: My Lords, upon some occasion I was accidently at the Chamber of the Speaker. There I met this gentleman, whom indeed I knew not. He told me who he was and when I understood who he was, I said to him (or words to this purpose--I cannot tell the words), because I would not distaste him, and say you have done this, what a sad case have we, said I, brought this Kingdom into. Why? saith he. You see, said I, how it is ruined, now the King is murdered and so forth.

Saith he, Some are of one opinion and some of another. Said I, Sir! Do you think it was well done to murder the King? Saith he, I will not make you my confessor, Sir. It was much to this purpose.

Counsel: When was this spoken?

Lord Mayor Elect: Truly I do not know the day, but it was that day that Sir H. Mildmay rendered himself to the speaker. It was since the coming in of the King.

Mr. Solicitor General: Neither time or the hand of God appearing in this business, nor the condition he was in, was ever able to bring this gentleman to be sorry for his offense: but we do not give it as any evidence of his crimes. You have heard the prisoner confess the two warrants, you have heard by several witnesses produced- that he did sit in that which they called the "High Court of Justice," by three that he sat particularly on that day they called the day of judgment. You have heard how little penitence he hath had, by his declaration to the Lord Mayor Elect.

Scroop: I hope, now that you have heard the evidence against me, that you will give me leave to make some defense for myself.

Lord Chief Baron: God forbid otherwise but that you should have free liberty.

Scroop: Truly, my Lords, though my breeding hath not been in the way of the laws and therefore I have a great disadvantage, where there be such learned gentlemen as these to plead against me.

I must confess to you I have something for matter of law, to plead for the justification of the fact, though I would not undertake to justify the person, I humbly entreat that I may have some time given me and some counsel, that I may answer matters of law.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scroop, if you have anything of matter of law, for which you would have counsel, you must allege that matter first. The use of counsel is only to put in certainty what you have of matter of law and then the Court and Judges must judge of it. If you have matter of law, you must tell what it is. If it be matter that there is cause to overrule it, there is no cause of making further use of counsel. If one is indicted for murder, when he comes to trial, he will say, I have matter of law to plead. What is that? That murder is not a felony. Do you think counsel will be admitted in this? If you do allege what this matter is, wherein you desire counsel, you shall have your answer.

Scroop: My Lords, As well as I am able to do it, I will do it. My Lords, I was not in the Parliament, take notice of that; and that which was done in the "High Court of Justice," it was done by a commission from the Parliament. My Lords, it was that authority which was then. I will not say it was so because I would not give offense. It was that authority then which was accounted the supreme authority of the nation, and that authority, my Lords, that a great many of the generality of the nation submitted to. My Lord, I having received a command from that authority, what I did was in obedience of that authority.

My Lord, I have not had time to consider of these things because I have been for these six weeks, shut up a close prisoner, and that I could neither come at counsel or anything else, nor to get anything to prepare for it. Therefore I desire your Lordships to do me the favor, if you see any weight in it, let me have time and counsel assigned me.

Lord Chief Baron: Have you done, sir?

Scroop: Yes.

Lord Chief Baron: Then I take this to be the effect of what you said. If I have not taken it aright, tell me so. You say you justify the fact though not the person, that you were not of the Parliament, that what was done was by commission from Parliament. Be pleased not to mistake me, for I say you said this, that which I have to plead in justification of it. I do not say that I justify myself, but that which I have to say is for justification of the fact. I was no first contriver of the business, and secondly I did it by virtue of the command and in obedience to the authority of Parliament, and that authority was then accounted the supreme authority of the nation, and that the generality of the nation did submit to its authority. I think I have repeated all you have said. Then,Mr. Scroop, you must know that there is no cause at all why counsel should be given for what you speak. I confess it rather tends to the aggravation than extenuation of what you did. First you say you did it by authority of Parliament. I am afraid you have been mistaken, as well as others, by the word Parliament. What does that mean? I am sure you and every one knows that there was not one precedent ever heard of till this, that the House of Commons should take upon them the legislative power and make such an act as this was. There was no color for it. Then for men upon their own heads, never heard of before, and against the liberty and freedom of the people, that they should call it the Parliament when there was but forty-six sat, whereas there was above two hundred and forty excluded--and how can you call this a House of Commons? Did ever the House of Commons before this single act take upon them the legislative power without the House of Lords? The acts are begun in the Commons House. When you have done, if the Lords do not pass it, it is abortive. If it be done by both Houses there ought to be the Royal Assent. But the Lords had rejected this Act. Then they must take upon themselves, these forty-six men, whereof I do believe there was not above twenty-five or twenty-six men, that did vote this. And this must be called the Parliament, the Commons of England.

I would fain know whether any man hath heard that the House of Commons took upon them the legislative power before this act. But this hath been overruled in the like case, and I shall say no more to it. What is the Oath of Allegiance? Is it not that you should defend the King, his crown, rights and liberties against all peoples and persons whatsoever? It was not only against the Pope, as some would have it, but the word is otherwise. They broke the Oath of Supremacy which was that the King was Supreme Governor of these Nations. They swore that they would maintain and keep all privileges and immunities and pre-eminences annexed to the Imperial Crown of this Realm. An Imperial Crown it was, that which was not touched in the person. We do not speak anything of the absolute power of the King, for you see he cannot judge concerning the death of his father but by law.

When you swore this allegiance, all those members to break all this at once,this would be so far from having any color of authority that he that justifies it is against the light of conscience and law. You say you did it by commandment from them. He that doeth a command by such an authority, it is his guilt. Our law book says: "If a court of common law exceed their jurisdiction, in that case he that obeys the command is punishable."

In the Court of Common Pleas, if there be an appeal there for murder, it is only proper to the upper bench and, therefore, if the party be condemned, sentenced and executed, thereupon, the executioner in that case is guilty of murder for obeying that authority which was, indeed, no authority. And therefore, whereas you would be about to justify the fact, because you did it by command of that authority,that is an aggravation, that when men shall assume an authority which is a devil at the noon-day, appearing without vizors. I say, shall assume an authority never heard of before, if men will countenance their acts by obeying them, it is an aggravation.

We have already declared this in the case of the prisoner yesterday. We are all satisfied in that case. It is so clear a point in law that my brethren here and we, did overrule it yesterday in the like case, and so we must now, and I hope that all do concur in this opinion that hath been delivered.

Lord Finch: I hope all do concur in this opinion delivered by my Lord Chief Baron. You shelter yourself under a command of the House of Commons, but let me tell you and all the world that, if the House of Commons (let it have been never so complete) had given a command, it had been a thing no-ways justifiable; the justification is an aggravation.

Scroope: My Lord, I do see that everything I speak, though it be for clearing myself of your ill opinion, I see it is taken in an ill sense. I humbly beseech pardon for the expression if I err, I will crave your Lordship's pardon. But, my Lords, I will say this, if I have been misled, I am not a single person who has been misled. My Lord, I could say (but I think it does not become me to say so) that I see a great many faces at this time that were misled as well as myself. But that I will not insist upon, but I say this, that I hope an error in judgment shall not be accounted malice or an error of the will. Truly, my Lords, I never went to the work with a malicious heart. I humbly desire your Lordships to take notice of it that I never bore any malice against his late Majesty.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scroope, have you done"

Scroope: My Lord, I do beseech your Lordships to take notice that an error of judgment is not an error of the will.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scroope, I am very glad to hear you say so, but let me tell you what the law saith. The law in this case creates the malice. If a man do an act of this nature, that may be some kind of excuse to God, but towards man you are to look to the fact. The law implies the malice. If there be anything you will say in the extenuation of your offense, we will be very glad to hear that it may tend to your help.

Mr. Scroope: My Lord, there is one evidence comes in against me that I must confess I am very sorry to see; and, my Lord, there was a saying and it was by my Lord Mayor Elect. Truly, he is a worthy gentleman, but I do desire that the Lord may forgive that which he hath spoken. Truly, my Lord, I did never intend anything to this, neither can I remember that I spoke those words directly, as my Lord Mayor doth speak. I do believe my Lord Mayor cannot very well remember them himself, for he said: "so far as he can remember." I must confess that when I was there and had appeared, according to the proclamation, that such discourse somewhat like it was raised, but not of my procuring. I did not procure the discourse. I never intended the justification of the fact but it was my ill success that I should meet that worthy gentleman to have such discourse with him.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scroop, My Lord Mayor Elect saith no further than this: "So far as he remember," and the words that you should say were these, that some are of one opinion and some of another.

Scroope: Upon the death of the King, my Lord, I must confess to you that somewhat I said to him, but I cannot own that I said those words. My Lords, he is a worthy person, I do not desire to speak anything to degenerate in the least kind from him; it is his yea and my no; there was nobody there.

Lord Chief Baron: Have you anything more to say for yourself?

Scroope: My Lord, if your Lordships do overrule it so I may not have counsel, I have little more to say.

Lord Chief Baron: You have heard the sense of the Court in this particular. You cannot have counsel allowed you as to the matter you have pleaded.

Scroope: I have done but only this, My Lords, I know not whether it be seasonable to mention it. I came in upon the proclamation and, my Lords, by means of the unhappy words that have been reported of me in the House of Commons, I have been excepted whereas before I was not excepted before the very last day. I beseech you to take notice of this.

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scrope, that is a thing that is not before us, but there will be a proper time to consider it in another place. That is nothing in the trial. Have you any more to say, Scrope?

Scrope: No, My Lord; will your Lordship please to let me speak a word to the jury.

Lord Chief Baron: If you speak to the Court the jury will hear.

Scroop: Truly, my Lord, this I do perceive, that I am under a very great prejudice as to this fact. It hath been the case of many gentlemen besides myself. I desire that these gentlemen would take my case into consideration as they would their own, and I desire that the Lord would give them direction that they may do that which is according to justice and mercy. That is all I have to say, my Lords.

Lord Chief Baron: You, gentlemen, that are sworn of this jury, you see the prisoner, Mr. Scroop, hath been indicted for imagining and contriving the death of his late Majesty of blessed memory, King Charles the First. You see there are several matters of fact to prove this imagination. The imagination is the treason. The matters of fact to prove it are but the evidences of that imagination. If any one of them be proved to you, it is sufficient. The one is consulting and meeting together how to put him to death. The other sitting and assuming authority to bring him to trial. Then you have a sentence by the Court to put the King to death, thereupon; afterwards he was put to death. Any one of these matters are evidence enough for you to prove the indictment, for though the indictment concludes that so they did imagine and compass the death of the King and that the King was put to death in manner and form as aforesaid, the manner and form aforesaid goes to this, to the imagination of the heart, for the law did not think any one would put the King to death. They thought it so great a crime they thought it not convenient to bring it into the statute. But the compassing and imagining the death of the King is made Treason. Then to apply it, this fact, to the gentleman, it appears to you here by the proofs against him.

Here is Mr. Masterson. He swears he saw him sit in the pretended court; there was your evidence of the first. The first was their meeting together and the second, too. They did assume authority upon them and he swears further to the sentence that the prisoner was there. Here were the three overt acts, all proved.

He confesses he did sign the warrant for putting the King to death. This, without any witness at all, was a sufficient proof, a proof of proofs.

The other witnesses, you hear what they say. You hear Mr. Kirke, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Nutly, swear all to his sitting there. It is true when they came to particulars as to where he sat, you must remember it was about twelve years ago. When a man sees a mixed number of about eighty persons it is impossible a man should be able to remember this particular after twelve years, where such a one sat. But you see by his sentencing what he did. They all witness they saw him positively, and one tells you he wondered he saw him there. And indeed it might be wondered, for Mr. Scroop (to give him his right) was not a person as some of the rest, but he was unhappily engaged in that bloody business, I hope, mistakenly. But when it comes to so high a crime as this, men must not excuse themselves by ignorance or misguided conscience as to God, for this horrid murder of the King somewhat there may be, but there is no excuse or extenuation before man. There may be, I say, before the Lord. You see the proof is full against this gentleman, as full as may be. Witnesses saw him sit and he confessed himself that he signed the warrants. I have no more to say to you, but, gentlemen, you see what it is. I think, for matter of fact, you need not go from the bar, but I leave it to you.

Scroop: My Lord,_____

Lord Chief Baron: Mr. Scroop, if you have anything to say, when the jury have brought in their verdict, if you will say anything for matter of mercy, the Court will hear you.

Scroope: I thank your Lordship.

The Jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Being asked what goods and chattels the prisoner had, they replied: "None that we know."

The Lord Chief Baron then told him: "If you will say anything the Court will hear."

Scroop: I have no more, my Lord, but refer myself to the Honorable Court.

Col. Scroope's conduct through the trial was most dignified and he met with more compassion than any that suffered. He behaved with a steady mind, and it does not appear that there was any act of his own ambition or sordid gain concerned, which cannot be said of the others implicated in the business.

After his condemnation, he said to one of his children hanging upon and weeping over him: "Peace, Child: be still. Not a word. Thou hast a blessed portion. Who would be troubled to die? For can any one have a greater honor than to have his soul carried up to Heaven on the wings of the prayers of so many saints?"

Being told that he and the others, also doomed to die, must all go into the room where Major General Harrison had been confined after his condemnation, he rejoiced exceedingly that they were not to be separated.

One of Scroope's nephews humanely came to him in the dungeon the night preceding his death and requested him to repent of the part he had acted toward the late King and to submit to the present King's mercy. That night, Col. Scroope told his fellow prisoners that he should take a little sleep, having had an indifferent one the night before. He composed himself and slept so soundly that he snored and had to be wakened when the sledge came for him. Upon being asked how his health was, he said, "Very well, I thank God, never better in my life: and now will I wash my hands in innocency, so will I compass Thine Altar, O Lord."

At the place of execution, he said: "You see here an object that hath been in a better place; but howsoever, the Lord Jesus Christ hath sent me to this place that in this place I should die. I have no animosity against any man, nor ever had. Neither have I any evil will to those that brought me hither, nor to the Jury that found me guilty, nor to the Judges who passed sentence, nor to him through whose means I was brought here to suffer. I say once more, the Lord forgive him. I shall not name him, for I came not hither to reflect on any man's person. I will not tell you what my breeding hath been, for it is not good for any man (especially at such a time) to boast of his lineage nor breeding. But this I shall say, I was born and bred a gentleman. As to my carriage, it may be, some who look upon me here know what it hath been, but God, the Judge of all, knows what it was." He finished by praying for strength to stand his present hour of temptation.

He was then executed.

ADRIAN SCROOPE-WILLIAM THROOPE

Robert and Edmund Scroope, elder sons of the regicide, took their degrees at Oxford in 1649. Their last years are indefinitely and incompletely reported. Foster's "Yorkshire Pedigrees" says Edmund Scroope "died about 1658". It appears in reality that they (with Adrian Scroope) sought safety just before the Restoration in Leyden in Holland. Adrian Scrope then made his way to America from Leyden in Holland.

There is one branch of the Throop family that holds that William Throope was brought to America by his father, John Throope, to the vicinity of Plymouth in 1640 from Leyden. There are no actual traces of any John or William Throope in America before William Throope's marriage in 1666.

There was a John Thorp with a wife named Alice listed in Pope's Pioneers of Massachusetts. He paid taxes in Plymouth in 1632 and may have died Aug. 15, 1633. Alice, wife of John Thropp, is listed as having died in Plymouth in 1653. These different spellings of the last name may be interesting in view of one branch of the family feeling that Adrian Scroope, when in peril of arrest after the Restoration, sought refuge in the house of a man named John Throop, who to protect him, claimed him as a son.

William Throope was born in England in 1638 and died Dec. 4, 1704. There is record of his will made on June 12, 1704. The earliest record found of William Throope was his marriage on May 4, 1666, to Mary Chapman. Mary Chapman was born Oct. 31, 1643, the daughter of Ralph Chapman and Lydia Willis of Marshfield, Mass. Mary Chapman died in June of 1732 in Bristol,Rhode Island.

It is interesting that the only traces found in this country of the regicide's own name are the two deeds signed in Hartford, Connecticut on 3-31-1665 and 5-8-1667 by "Adrian Scroope". The English had a custom of "visitations" whereby one would make it a point to have his name recorded in some official record to establish for all time his existence at a given time and area. This was valuable if you later wanted to claim some property by inheritance.

When William Throope-Adrian Scroope made his "visitation" and witnessed the deed in Hartford,Conn., he signed his name "Adrian Scroope". This is interesting because the name of Scrope was usually written with one "o", but Col. Adrian Scroope of Wormsley often spelled it with two "o's".

About "Adrian Scroope" we know nothing after 1665 and 1667. About "William Throope" we know nothing prior to his marriage in 1666. This is interesting in view of the vast amount recorded following his "appearance" at his wedding in 1666.

William Throope was married in Barnstable, Massachusetts and served on the Grand Jury there in 1680. Later that same year he removed to a place later called Bristol, Rhode Island. At Bristol, he was surveyor of the highways in 1683, selectman in 1689, grandjuror in 1690 and representative in the general court in 1691. He died in Bristol,R.I. on Dec. 4., 1704.

It is interesting that the place he settled as original proprietor became known as "Bristol". Col. Adrian Scroope was governor of Bristol Castle in 1649, the year of the execution of Charles I. Other Scroopes had settled in the town of Bristol, England.

With William Throope, as an early settler of Bristol, R.I., was Nathaniel Blagrave. Daniel Blagrave was one of the regicides and William's sister, Elizabeth Scroope, had married Jothan Blagrave of Longworth, Buckinghamshire.

Col.Adrian Scroope's brother-in-law was Sir Peter Saltonstall,son of Sir Richard Saltonstall, founder of the great New England family of that name. Rev. Nathaniel Cotton, a descendant of the Saltonstalls was a minister at Bristol, R.I.

It is interesting to note that William Throope took the trouble to make out a will and while he lived five months after it was complete, he failed to sign it. There are some who wonder what name he wanted to use and what legal problems might have developed if he used the incorrect name.

It may be of further interest to note that from 1859 to 1869, a suit was before the House of Lords in England regarding the claim of Simon Thomas Scrope, of Danby, to the Earldom of Wiltshire. During the progress of this suit, it was pointed out that a branch of the family had in the past emigrated to America.

In an old family record of a daughter of Rev. Benjamin Throope, it is stated that he was the seventh child of Capt. William Throope, the third son of William Throope whose father, "Lord Scroope of Scotland," in "one of the Scotch rebellions" fled to America and assumed the name of William Throope. Col. Adrian Scroope was one of the Commissioners for the Civil Government of Scotland in 1657.

There may always be questions that will never be fully answered as to why Adrian Scroope chose to use the name "William Throope". There are those who would associate the name with John Thorp and those who feel he changed the first two letters of Scroope in order to have a name very similar in case he wished to return to the Scroope name later.

We tend to hold to that which has been suggested about the name being related to the Bible and more particularly to Genesis 39:16-19. While we in no way want any suggestion made that "Throops" are directly fulfilling a particular prophecy or are God's gift to mankind, we feel that Adrian-William was so familiar with the Bible that it was used in his everyday language. His background was Puritan. Some suggest that the Puritan beliefs of Col. Adrian Scroope were the only reason that he was executed. The presence and effect of the Bible was certainly evident when one considers the long list of ministers among the descendants.

We feel that Adrian-William was reading the passage in Genesis when he chose the name "troop" and also "Dan". Dan was the name of his first son and means "Judge" in Hebrew. When reading the passage, he did not have the King James Bible and so spelled troop the English way which was "Throope". The English have a silent "h" in some of their words. The final "e" was common in Early America but was dropped after about 100 years.

Genesis 39:16-19

16: Dan shall Judge his people as one of the tribes of Israel.
17: Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path that biteth the horses heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.
18: I have waited for thy Salvation, O Lord.
19. Gad, a troop shall overcome him, but he shall overcome at the last.

A significant Coat of Arms was assumed by William Throope. The crest was "A naked arm grasping a coiled serpent, all proper." The motto was "Debita Facere" which means "They did their duty". This may be a reference to the Judges and verse 19 may be a reference to King Charles I, who was overcome, but who overcame at the last in the person of his son.

As we read of William Throope being called "Goodman" Throope, and as we reviewed the long list of Throop ministers, we could not help but include:

I Corinthians 15:1-4
And now I want to remind you, brothers,of the Good News which I preached to you which you received, and on which your faith stands firm. That is the Gospel, the message that I preached to you. ....I passed on to you what I received, which is of the greatest importance: That Christ died for our sins, as written in the Scriptures; that He was buried and raised to life on the third day, as written in the Scriptures.

Ephesians 1:6 & 7
Let us praise God for his glorious grace, for the free gift He gave us in His dear Son! For by the death of Christ, we are set free and our sins are forgiven. How great is the grace of God.

John 3:16
For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

COAT OF ARMS

The Throop family is heir to two Coats of Arms. William Throope-Adrian Scroope could have used the Scroope Coat of Arms. Instead, William Throope changed the Arms and established the Throop Coat of Arms. We have produced both Arms for you.
The Scroope Arms is one of the most ancient and honourable arms in England. It dates from "time Immemorial" and became famous with the Scrope-Grosvenor trial in 1385. Because this was a precedent setting court decision, the Scroope Arms became quite well known in the field of Heraldry.

Scroope Arms

Arms: Azure, a bend or.
Crest: A plume of feathers argent.
Motto: "Devant si je puis" "En espoir je vive attendant grace"
Badge: A Cornish chough

Throope Arms

Arms: Gules, a bar between two chevrons argent.
Crest: A naked arm grasping a coiled serpent: all proper.
Motto: "Debita Facere." They did their duty.

Coats of Arms are usually described in heraldic terminology. "Azure" means blue and signifies loyalty, fidelity, and truth. "Or" means gold and refers to the bearer's valor. "A bend" is a bar running from the upper left to the lower right and represents a shoulder belt of armament. "Gules" means red and represents fire or fortitude. "Chevrons" are inverted "v's" and are supposed to have been adapted from the bow of the war saddle. "Argent" means silver and represents nobility, peace, and serenity.

INTRODUCTION TO CHARTS

Adrian Scroope became William Throope and in 1666 married Mary Chapman in Massachusetts. Chart number 1 shows William and Mary and their children. The parents are listed to the left of a page with the children to the right in birth order. Further charts were then made for their sons that had families. In order to find the chart of a particular son, look to see what his position of birth was and put that number next to the number of the father's chart. For example, William's son, Dan, was his 2nd child. Therefore, Dan's chart number would be 12. Then if you want to find the chart of Dan's 3rd child the chart number would be 123. If there are more than 9 children in a family, capital letters are used for 10 and up. For example, if you want to find the chart of Dan's 10th child his chart would be number 12A.

At the top left of each chart are given the titles of books or the names of persons contributing facts to the information on that particular chart. To find the complete bibliographical information see the bibliography in the back of the book. b.birth date w.birth place(where) m.marriage date
w.marriage place d.death date
w.death place
o.occupation

Parentheses are used to indicate the maiden name of the mother of someone marrying into the Throop family; various spellings of names; nicknames; and rank or position such as Rev., Dr., Capt., or Hon. If the place of birth is not known but a source states that this person was "of" or "from" a particular place we have included that place with "of" or "from" in parentheses.

We have tried to be as accurate as possible and when sources differed on a date we have in most instances given both dates. We realize, however, that in a book of this size there are going to be errors and we would appreciate having corrections or additions.

Chancey W. Throop = ?
b.1800-1810 b.1800-1810

Beside Chancey and his wife the census records: 2 males under 5; 1 male 10 to 15; 1 male 15 to 20; 1 female 10 to 15.

In this census Chancey W. is listed right above William W. (Unplaced family line of William)

1. Throoptown,Canada-located in North Augusta,Ontario,Canada. Named after Calvin Throop(12B 63) who emigrated to Canada about 1800 with his brother, Samuel.

2. Throop,Kansas-a county hamlet in Washington County. Located in Coleman township 10 miles S.W. of Washington and 7 miles S. of Morrowville. Population in 1910 was 28. This town is no longer in existence. It was named after Joseph Allen Throop (12B 633 1).

3. Throop,Pennsylvania-just East of the town of Scranton. This town was named after Dr. Benjamin Henry Throop (158 517) who wrote a fifty year history of the town of Scranton,Pennsylvania. This town became an incorporated borough in 1894 and had a population of 1,639. On April 7,1911, Throop was the scene of the most appaling mine disaster in the history of the northern anthracite coal fields in which 72 mine workers lost their lives.

4. Throopsville,New York-near Auburn,New York, where "Willowbrook", the home of former Governor, Enos Thompson Throop(151 311),still stands. This is not an incorporated town.

5. Throop,New York-a town lying northwest of the center of the County of Cayuga. By 1859, when the town was formed, Enos Thompson Throop had been a member of Congress, Lt. Governor and Governor, and the town was named after him.

6. Throop Street-in Woodstock,Illinois.

7. Throop Road-in Harborcreek,Pennsylvania. On the corner of this road and the main road leading into Harborcreek is an old farm home belonging once to the Throop family. Calvin Throop(12B 658) built and ran a sawmill here. The property now belongs to the Benedictine sisters. It is the road leading to the property that is Throop Road.

8. Throop Avenue-in Brooklyn,New York. This avenue was first laid out on the map of the city of Brooklyn in 1839. It was named after Enos Thompson Throop, the 10th Governor of New York.

9. Throop Street in Chicago,Illinois. This Street was originally Main Street when the Great Fire of 1871 occurred. Amos Gager Throop (12A 273) was Treasurer of the City of Chicago at the time and because he was instrumental in helping to reorganize commerce etc., after the fire, the city fathers named this street after him.

10. Throop University or Throop Polytechnic Institute-in Pasadena,California. Its name was changed to California Institute of Technology in 1920. It was first named after Amos Gager Throop(12A 273) who contributed a very large sum of money to found the University. It is an accredited, privately controlled college of engineering and science, graduate school, and research institute for men.
